

FREE CAREER ACCOMPLISHMENT TRACKER

KEEP THE PROOF

The 10-Minute Career Evidence Starter

Turn one accomplishment into proof you can use in a performance review, interview, internal move or career pivot.

One accomplishment. One Proof Line.

WHAT YOU WILL BUILD

- BEFORE
- YOUR CONTRIBUTION
- WHAT CHANGED
- WHAT TRAVELS

Temidayo Afonja

Career Portability Advisor · Founder, The Density Group

A CAPABILITY FORMATION RESOURCE

temidayoafonja.com

WHY I MADE THIS

"I used to think I would remember the work that mattered. I don't.

I created Keep the Proof after seeing how quickly the details behind good work disappear: what was true before, what you actually contributed and why the result mattered.

For this Starter, you only need one piece of work. Let's make it usable before you forget it."

Temidayo Afonja

Choose one accomplishment worth remembering.

Do not try to reconstruct your entire career. Choose one project, assignment, decision, problem, launch, redesign, client engagement, process improvement or piece of work from the recent past that mattered. Then complete the six prompts that follow.

CHOOSE SOMETHING WHERE AT LEAST ONE IS TRUE

- Something changed because you were involved.
- You exercised judgment, not just activity.
- You solved or prevented a meaningful problem.
- Someone relied on your expertise.
- You learned something you could use again.

QUICK CAPTURE

Write it down fast, before the detail fades. Two lines is enough.

THE WORK

ROUGHLY WHEN

WHY IT MATTERED

BEFORE YOU WRITE

Tick each one before you write. If you cannot tick it, leave that detail out.

I am recording my own recollection, and information I am permitted to retain.

I am not copying, forwarding, photographing or reproducing confidential or employer-owned material.

I am not including protected customer, employee or proprietary company information.

Where I am unsure whether I may retain something, I have left it out.

This is educational material, not legal advice.

BUILD THE EVIDENCE

What actually happened?

You do not need a perfect metric. You need a truthful account of what changed.

PROJECT OR WORK EVENT

1 BEFORE

What was true before I got involved?

What problem, condition, constraint or need existed?

2 YOUR JUDGMENT

What was my specific contribution or judgment?

What did you notice, decide, influence, build, change or prevent? Your part, not everything the team did.

3 CHANGE

What changed?

What improved, became possible, moved, disappeared or was prevented?

4 PROOF

What evidence supports this?

What makes the account defensible? Use only accurate and permitted evidence: a measured result, an observable change, a public source, documented feedback, a role-based verifier, or a before and after condition.

What does this work show you can do?

5 WHAT COULD I PLAUSIBLY DO AGAIN?

Move beyond the project name. What did this work require you to know how to do?

Diagnose an unclear problem	Bring structure to ambiguity	Influence across functions	Improve a process
Make a difficult tradeoff	Translate technical information	Build trust	Lead through change
Redesign an experience			Identify risk

These are examples, not a checklist. What did your work require?

6 REMOVE THE INTERNAL LANGUAGE

Which words only make sense inside your current company?

INSIDE YOUR COMPANY	→	OUTSIDE YOUR COMPANY
Project Horizon		Cross-functional onboarding redesign
QBR		Operating review
XYZ Workflow		Customer intake process

This is an example of the distinction, not a claim that those terms are equivalent in every workplace.

INTERNAL PROJECT NAME	INTERNAL ACRONYM OR SYSTEM	COMPANY-SPECIFIC LANGUAGE

How would you explain the same work to someone who has never worked there?

YOUR PORTABLE PROOF LINE

Turn the evidence into one portable line.

I helped [solve / change / build / improve what]
by [your specific contribution or judgment],
which [result or observable change],
showing that I can [portable capability].

This is a scaffold for thinking, not a sentence to copy mechanically. Rearrange it so it sounds like you.

BEFORE

"Led Project Horizon onboarding work."

PORTABLE

"Led a cross-functional onboarding redesign that improved new-hire integration by diagnosing gaps, aligning stakeholders and turning an unclear experience problem into an operating change."

MY PORTABLE PROOF LINE

CAN IT TRAVEL?

Someone outside my company could understand it.

It separates my contribution from the team result.

I could defend it if someone asked a second question.

I have removed anything I am not permitted to retain or disclose.

YOU FINISHED IT

You did it.

You now have one piece of work you can explain without relying on your title, project name or company vocabulary.

WHERE YOU CAN USE IT

Performance review

Interview

Promotion conversation

Resume

Internal move

Career pivot

Adapt the evidence to the conversation. Do not reuse one sentence mechanically everywhere.

One Proof Line is useful.
A record is more powerful.

This Starter proves one thing.
Keep the Proof builds the record.

Keep the Proof

A 60-Minute Career Evidence System

If this exercise helped you see one accomplishment more clearly, Keep the Proof gives you the complete system and reusable Career Evidence Ledger for capturing, translating, organising and maintaining the record over time.

temidayoafonja.com/keep-the-proof

Your career evidence should not have to be reconstructed from memory after the context changes.