Before You Quit Your Job, Check These 3 Things

BEFORE YOU DESIGN

Once you leave,
access changes.

Evidence, systems and people can become harder to reach.

If your health or safety is at risk, or you are facing harassment or discrimination, this is not a reason to wait.

THREE CHECKS BEFORE YOU RESIGN

01

Preserve the evidence

Keep what is yours to keep.

CHECK ONE

Preserve the evidence.

Keep only what you are entitled to keep.

Yours to keep

- Your own performance reviews
- Recognition you received
- Nonconfidential metrics already shared with you
- Project dates
- Scope of responsibility
- Permitted notes on decisions or problems you helped resolve

Not yours to take

- Confidential information
- Customer data
- Employee data
- Proprietary documents
- Anything employer-owned you have no right to keep

THREE CHECKS BEFORE YOU RESIGN

02

Name what the work built

An achievement is useful when you understand what it proves.

CHECK TWO

Name what the work built.

A resume bullet is not automatically portable evidence.

Problem

What problem was being solved?

Constraint

What made the situation difficult?

Judgment

What did I notice, decide, interpret or influence?

Outcome

What changed or was prevented?

Then ask: where else could that combination matter?

THREE CHECKS BEFORE YOU DESIGN

03

Test the next move

Look for overlap between what is proven and what must still grow.

CHECK THREE

Test the next move.

A strong move does two things at once.

Uses something proven

Builds something new

- 01 What will this next role allow me to carry?
- 02 What new judgment, exposure or responsibility will it force me to develop?
- 03 What will I be able to do after a year that I cannot do now?

THE THREE CHECKS

Take them in order,
before you resign.

01

Preserve the evidence

02

Name what the work built

03

Test the next move

READING THE EVIDENCE

Three directions the evidence can point.

The point is not to make the decision slow.
The point is to make it legible.

Leave

The evidence says leaving is right, and you are ready.

Reposition inside

Another role, project or scope change could restore growth without an immediate exit.

Build a bridge

You need something first: a credential, outside-context evidence, financial runway, or a clearer translation of what your experience can do elsewhere.

BEFORE YOU DESIGN

Answer these three first.

01 What evidence do I need to preserve now?

02 What does my strongest evidence show I can do?

03 What must the next move use and build?

CAREER DECISION EVIDENCE CHECK

Before you make the move, read what the work has built.
