

STAY OR LEAVE?

Most career advice gives you two options.
Here are seven.

The question underneath the question:

“Is this work still building me,
and what would still travel
if the context changed?”

Remain and deepen

The work is still building you. That is worth protecting.

YOU MIGHT BE HERE IF

you are still being handed problems you do not already know how to solve.

2

Translate what is built

The capability is real. The language for it outside your company is missing.

YOU MIGHT BE HERE IF

you can only describe your work in your company's internal terms.

3

Widen exposure

The work is good. The people who could evaluate it have not seen it.

YOU MIGHT BE HERE IF

the people who make hiring and promotion decisions cannot yet see what you are good at.

4

Test portability

Find out what travels before you need it to.

YOU MIGHT BE HERE IF

you are not sure your capability would be valued in a different industry.

5

Repair the conditions

Change the work before you change the employer.

YOU MIGHT BE HERE IF

the job is fine, but the work stopped asking more of you.

Prepare for exit

Your evidence gives you reason to prepare, in case the conditions do not repair.

YOU MIGHT BE HERE IF

you have tried to change the work and nothing moved.

7

Seek an outside perspective

Ask someone outside your situation to read your evidence with you.

YOU MIGHT BE HERE IF

the decision is big, and you cannot tell yet what your evidence says.

WHO TO ASK:

a former manager, a mentor, a peer in the field you are considering, or a career advisor.

Which one are you in right now?

Pick the one your evidence supports testing next.
It can change in ninety days.
